END OF PRODUCT LIFE INSTRUCTIONS

When your gloves reach the end of their useable lifespan, we recommend researching local resources for repurposing. Contact your local homeless resource center and ask if they accept used gloves. Even if used, gloves are often a high need item at these centers. A second alternative is to visit <https://search.earth911.com> where you can enter the term "Clothing" and your zip code to find clothing recycling centers near you.

CARE INSTRUCTIONS

For the long-term care of your gloves, it's best to hand wash them with a mild detergent in lukewarm water and let them air dry. If machine washing is desired, make sure the cuff closures are secured so the "hooks" don't adhere to other items in the wash. Add detergent to the wash after the water has started and avoid fabric softeners. To preserve the technical performance of your gloves, we recommend using a simple detergent that is free of additives. Never place your gloves in a commercial dryer and avoid "hot" settings. They can be machine dried using a low or warm setting. If in doubt, treat them like your jeans and let them air dry for best future fit.
